The Poorest Place to Tell a Lie!

IT has been said by some of our radical reformers that advertising misleads the public.

Such accusations fall under their own weight.

The poorest place in the world to attempt a lie is in the advertising columns of American newspapers and magazines, and in American radio programs.

In the first place, our publishers and broadcasting companies wouldn't carry dishonest advertising. They outlawed it long ago.

In the second place, such efforts to mislead would be conducted in full view of the public and of the officials empowered to apply fraud laws.

In the third place, dishonest advertising is as inefficient as dirty football. It does not pay.

Informed people have lost interest in the advertising-baiting books and speeches of the radical self-appointed reformers since one after another of them has figured prominently before the House Special Committee on un-American Activities.

Electricity Assures Water for Livestock

Economical Installation For Winter Suggested

Electricity, which has eased the farmer's chores, has come to the aid of farm animals, too.

Through the medium of electricity, Dobbin and Bossy no longer need fear that their drinking water supply will be shut off during the cold winter months.

Tests by agricultural engineers have demonstrated that electricity is economical to provide warm water for livestock during the winter. Watering devices were operated at a cost as low as 70 kilowatt hours per month, representing an outlay of $1.40 at two cents per kilowatt.

Some farmers are finding that their installations are expensive to operate, principally because of lack of insulation or because too much water is heated.

The following suggestion will help to make an ideal installation:

1. Use as small a tank as possible, definitely not more than 150 gallons.
2. Install a float so the size of the tank can be reduced. Commercial units now on the market use only a drinking cup.
3. Use at least three or four inches of commercial insulation and cover all sides, leaving room for only one or two animals to drink.
4. Install a baffle board to prevent air movement over the water under the insulated top.

Use of electricity makes it safe to install the tank inside the barn or in a shed, which will encourage livestock to drink more water and thus increase milk and meat production.

Farmer Falls Hardest

Life on the farm is far more hazardous for the farmer and his sons than it is for his wife and his daughters.

In fact, a survey covering 15,000 farms the country over, made by the department of agriculture, reveals that about four times as many accidents happened to men and boys between the ages of 14 and 65 as were suffered by farm women and girls. Of the youngsters under 14 injured, nearly 65 per cent were boys.

More farm people were injured by falls than any other type of accident, with the majority of mishaps involving falling on steps and stair and from vehicles. Men and boys were victims of twice as many injuries from falls as were women and girls.

Of the total number of farm accidents, 56 per cent were connected with farm work and 8 per cent with housework. The age period from 25 to 45 was disclosed as the most dangerous.

Horses Need Attention During Stabled Period

Disease and injury that sometimes prove crippling can be prevented by giving special attention to horses' feet during the stabled period. Brittle hoofs, spongy hoofs, thrush and foot canker are the four diseases commonly caused by bad stable conditions.

Clean, dry floors are recommended as a precaution. The feet of stabled animals also should be trimmed at least once a month

NOTES FOR POULTRYMEN

How to clean eggs without destroying their protective "bloom" has long been a troublesome problem to poultrymen.

The New Jersey Experiment Station has the answer, reports Harry Moore, head of the poultry department at V. P. I.

Simply dip the eggs in a gallon of warm water to which a teaspoonful of a detergent, or soapless washing powder, has been added. Let the eggs dry naturally. Do not rub.

Freedom of the press first meant freedom to express one's opinions. Today freedom to get and publish the news is more important.
